82. Being Natural

Oklahoma City has a variety of sunsets, which denote man's greatest energy
source, solar power.

Right: Gasohol was a new petroleum product on the market in 1979. Karen Brady fills up her car with the new fuel. Below: Jerry Valle ran for Classen in cross-country.

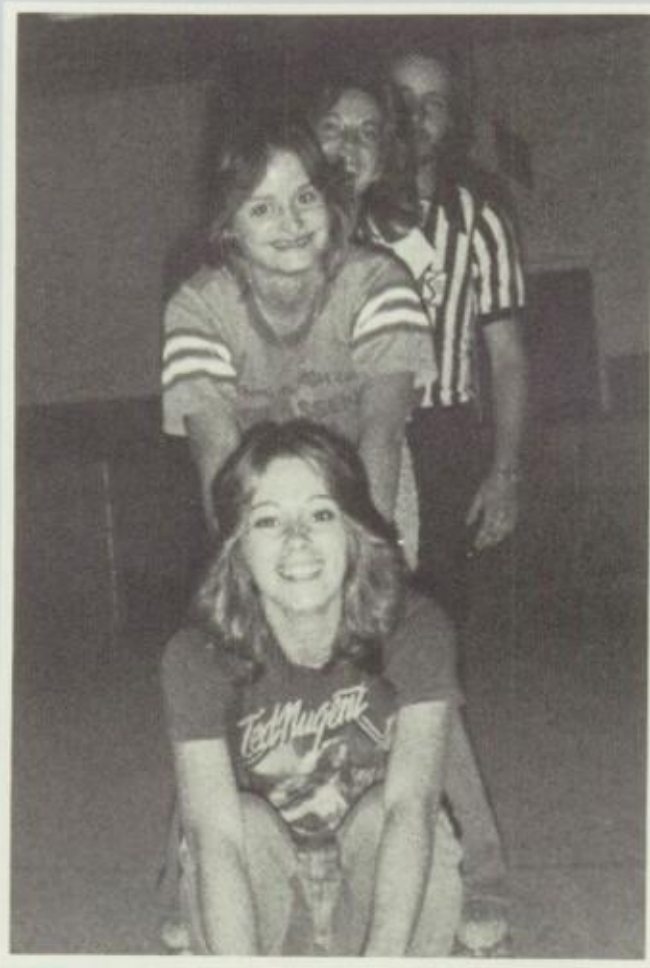

ENERGY

Energy is the theme of this book. The cover denotes three forms of energy. Those three forms are the sun, the wind, and perhaps the one form responsible for energy's use and abuse: Man.

Man has the ability to use energy to its fullest capacity and this is an everpresent goal in modern man's thoughts. Gasohol was a mixture of gas and alcohol, which had come from corn. Now it couldn't be said that gas and alcohol don't mix. Did one have to be 18 to purchase the gasohol?

There are all kinds of energy of which man is capable of controlling himself. The most common are walking and running. Cross-country runners were at a disadvantage when their coach went on strike for better equipment and was denied his coaching job after the strike. Runners ran without a coach.

ENERGY FOR A STRONG AMERICA

Energy was more than just solar energy. There were man-made energy forces. Amtrak was discontinued in Oklahoma in October and left the state without passenger train service totally. With the energy crisis, the Iranians' withholding oil, and OPEC's price hikes, many Oklahomans could not figure that one out.

The most taxing energy spent, probably, could have been by the striking teachers. They "walked the line in '79" and brought the conditions of Oklahoma City's public schools into public view. The strike was broken by highly-paid anti-union forces, but the energy spent by those teachers who did choose to strike was not wasted as some people did think to check out what was going on in the Oklahoma City schools.

ENERGY CRUNCH

There was food at Classen! And how there was food at Classen! The sophomores sold freshly baked items. The juniors sold all kinds of candy. The seniors sold candy. The Girls' O'Club sold candy. It seemed like everyone sold candy, candy, candy! And if this all weren't enough, the administration even sanctioned candy and pop machines in the halls. But, alas, one must not forget the infamous Red Cross barbecue sandwiches.

The obvious question was probably with all this junk food, who purchased them? The students and even the teachers. There were M and M boxes in the desks, Chee-tos bags on the floor, and Coke cans in the trash baskets, sometimes.

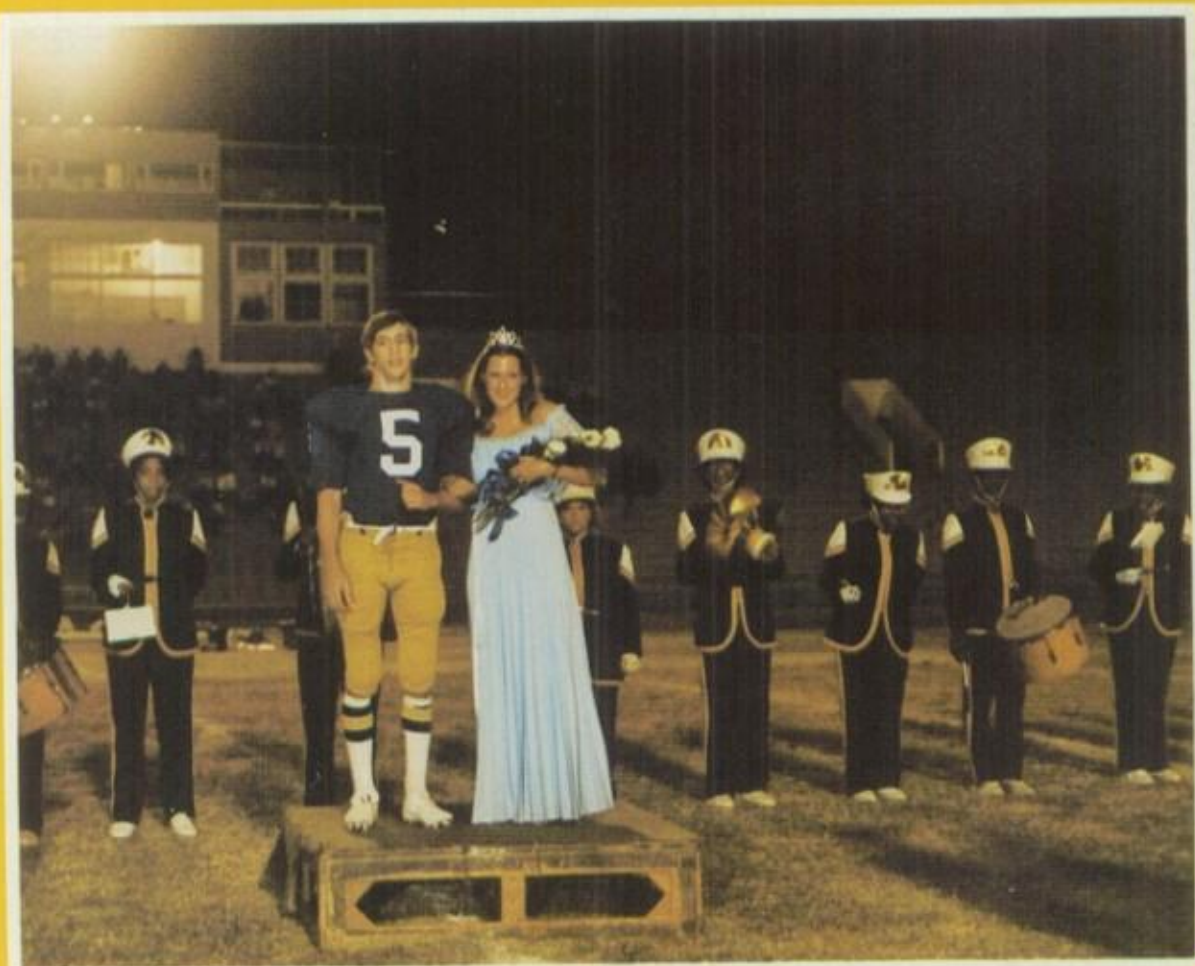

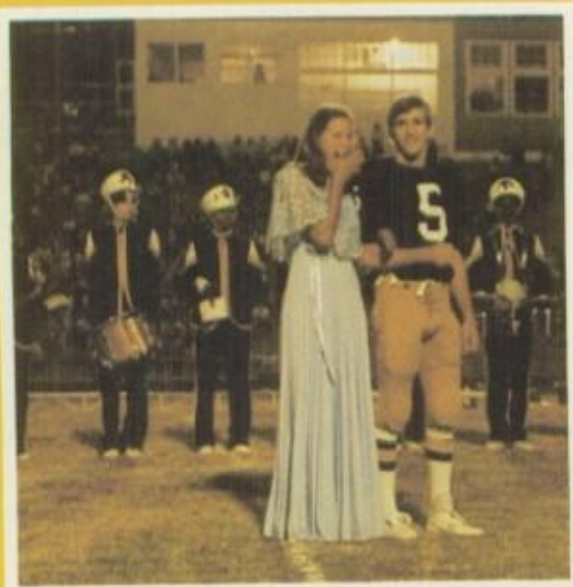

At times it seemed like Classen resembled a 7-11 store with all the junk food goodies being sold. At least these sweets performed one good job. They provided short energy spurts. It was actually an energy crunch.

Queen Crowned

Homecoming's theme this year was "Ain't No Stoppin' Us Now." It was taken from a popular song title. Unfortunately, McGuinness defeated Classen in the game, but that didn't seem to dampen the All-Sports Queen candidates' spirits.

Robin Mitchell was crowned All-Sports Queen. Cheryl Baxter, Gwen Pearson, Tara Weatherall, and Jacky Wilhite were the princesses.

Energetic Comets

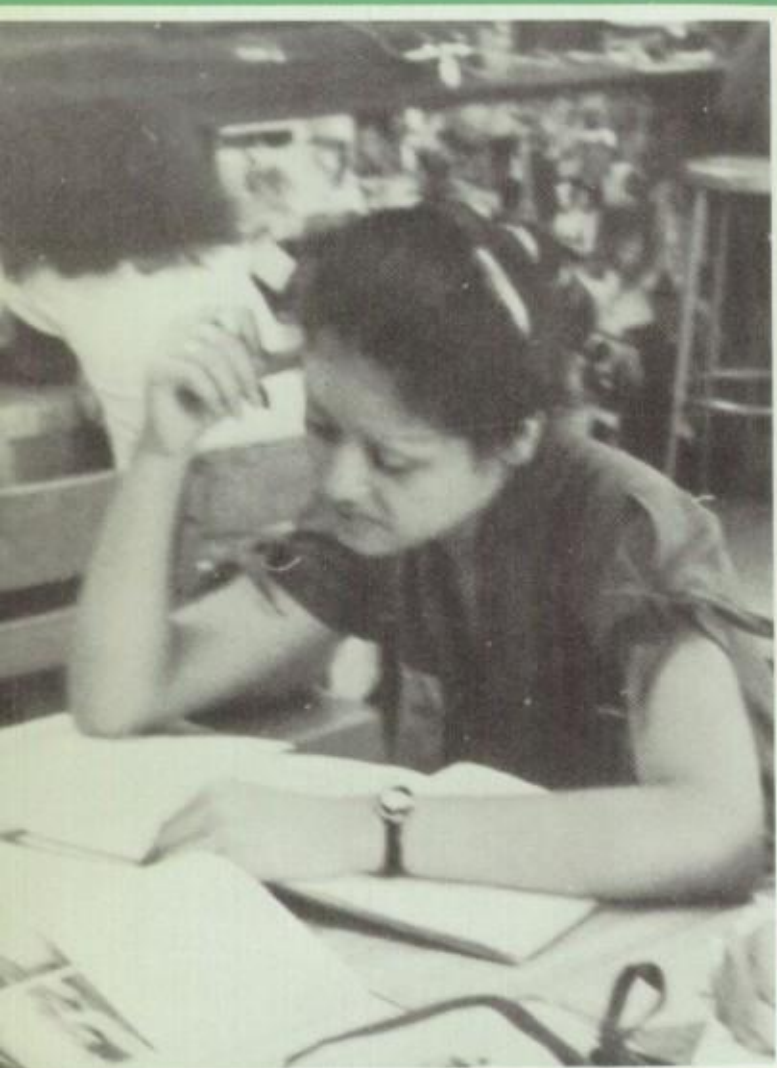

Activities at Classen were fairly energetic. It seemed things got more energetic when basketball season began, however. Pep assemblies were more plentiful after some of the basketball team members were named players of the week by channel five. Some students thought it was a shame that other sports were not given as much time and attention, but things were just run that way.

Talent and activities did not revolve solely around sports though. Drama put on plays and won contests in many they entered for oratory. The pep club got a boost this year with a new president who was energetic herself.

Planning, teaching integral parts

Planning and teaching were integral parts of life at Classen. Students were allowed to plan most of their club activities. Teachers were the prompters of students in most cases. They were also the ones who were responsible, in the end, for the final follow-through of scheduled activities. In most situations, the students pulled through, even at the last moment, but once in a while there were no students around and teachers completed the tasks.

Escapism: Way of life

Things at school were on the same level all year. Some students went to class. Some didn't. It did seem that the same students were singled out and were sent home for cutting classes while others were allowed to do almost anything they liked. Again, things were just run that way.

While some students attended classes regularly, others tried many forms of escape which included attempted treks out of third floor windows. Escapism was also present in the minds of the students who were present. Some slept while others tuned in a deaf ear to the goings-on in classes.

Enthusiasm Drags

Deadlines were everpresent. Whether they were yearbook or athletic deadlines, most of them were met — the yearbook's anyway.

Teachers tried to keep enthusiastic as the year dragged on and most succeeded although the spell between Christmas and spring break did seem to drag on for so long. Even though the time between the two vacations was long, some students took vacations themselves by sleeping in class.

Fair Faces

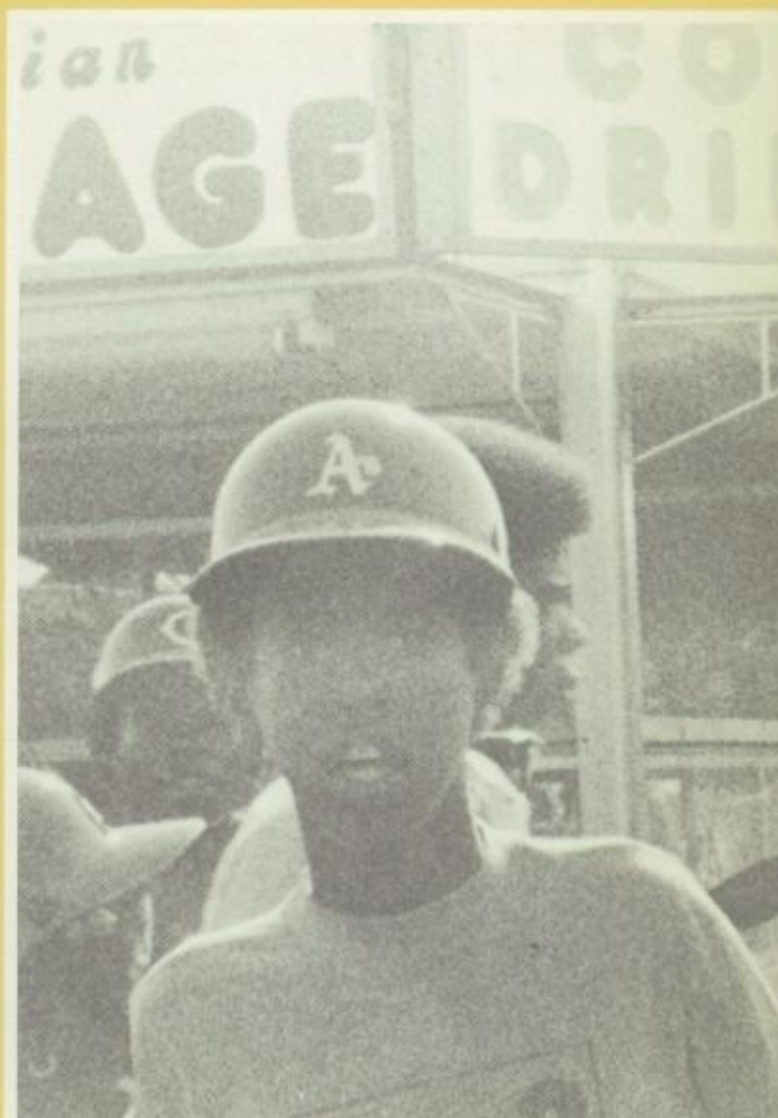

Each year the State of Oklahoma holds its big official State Fair in Oklahoma City. (Sure, Tulsa has one, but Oklahoma City's is the official state fair.) It's held the last week or ten days of September and it usually rains and/or gets cold.

The chances of it turning cold and/or raining seem more likely to happen on the Monday the Oklahoma City Public School system designates as Fair Day. The sun shone brightly this year, however, and some Classen faces were out in full swing at the 1979 State Fair of Oklahoma.

Out of Place

Extra curricular activities are usually the most interesting things students do. Red Cross fall retreat was the most popular subject for being out of place. Everyone has at least one other thing to do outside of school activities.

Really out of place was CBS's crew at a special pep assembly. Even though they were only interested in the Vietnamese part of our student body, we all enjoyed having them visit us.

Next time you go out, beware of cameras so you won't get caught out of place.

Amazing Faces

Our students are always the stars of the show. These faces are familiar and we wanted to show them to you. The students are the working, moving part of school. Here, they work and move more than anyone else. They are trying to prove that even though we get a lot of bad publicity, we still give a good education to those who attend.

Be on the lookout for these faces. It's more than likely that you will see them again.

Amazing Faces

Candid photos of students caught being themselves are the most fun to look at. The element of surprise is the key to this type of picture.

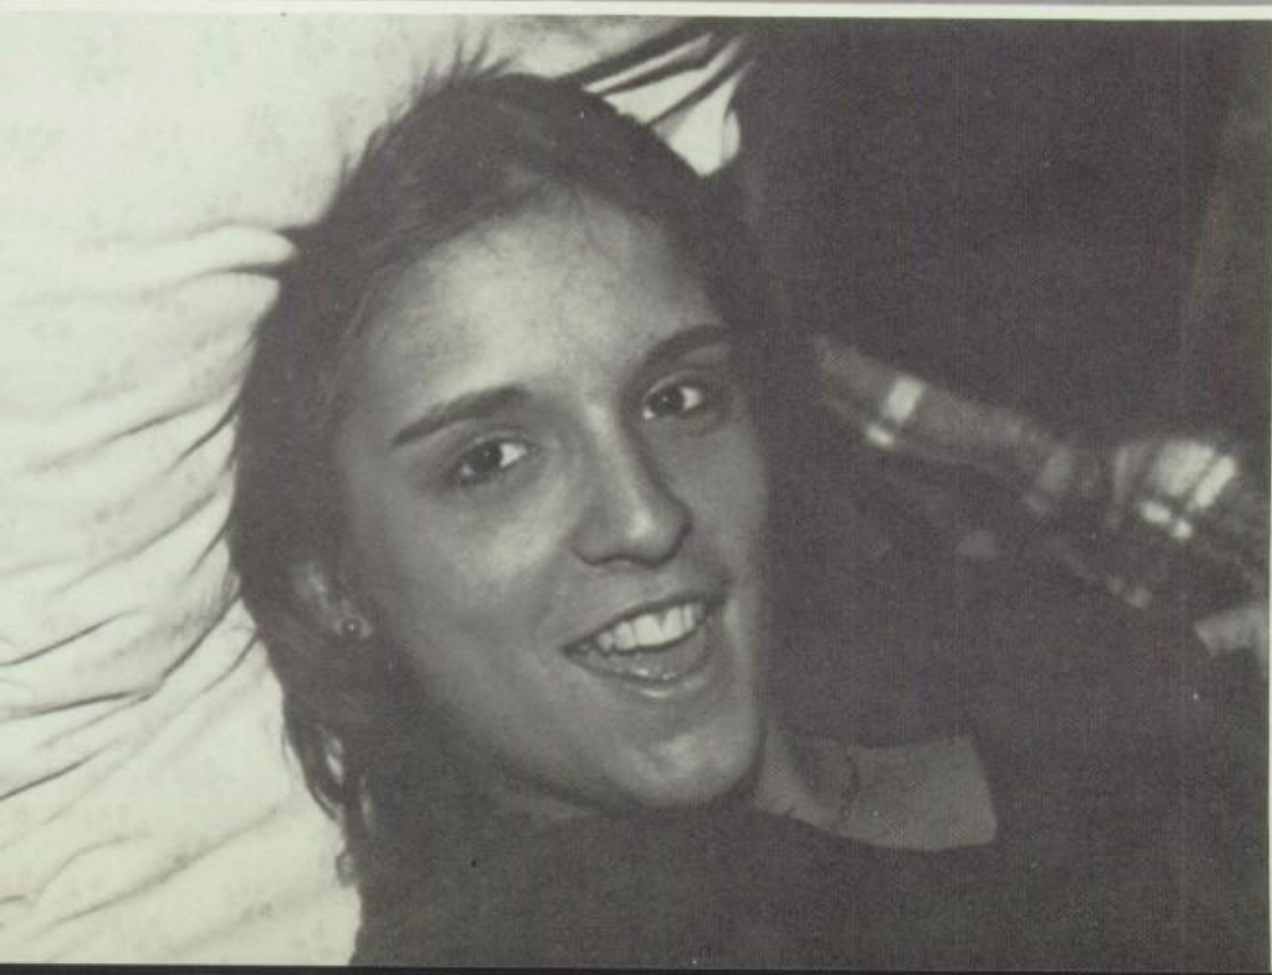

Many of the students seem different being themselves. If you try to pose or act a certain way, it seems phony and unreal. Reality is the most important part of being natural.

Classen is what being natural is all about. We don't try to be like everyone else, but we're not exactly non-conformists, either. We're just us.

Face to Face

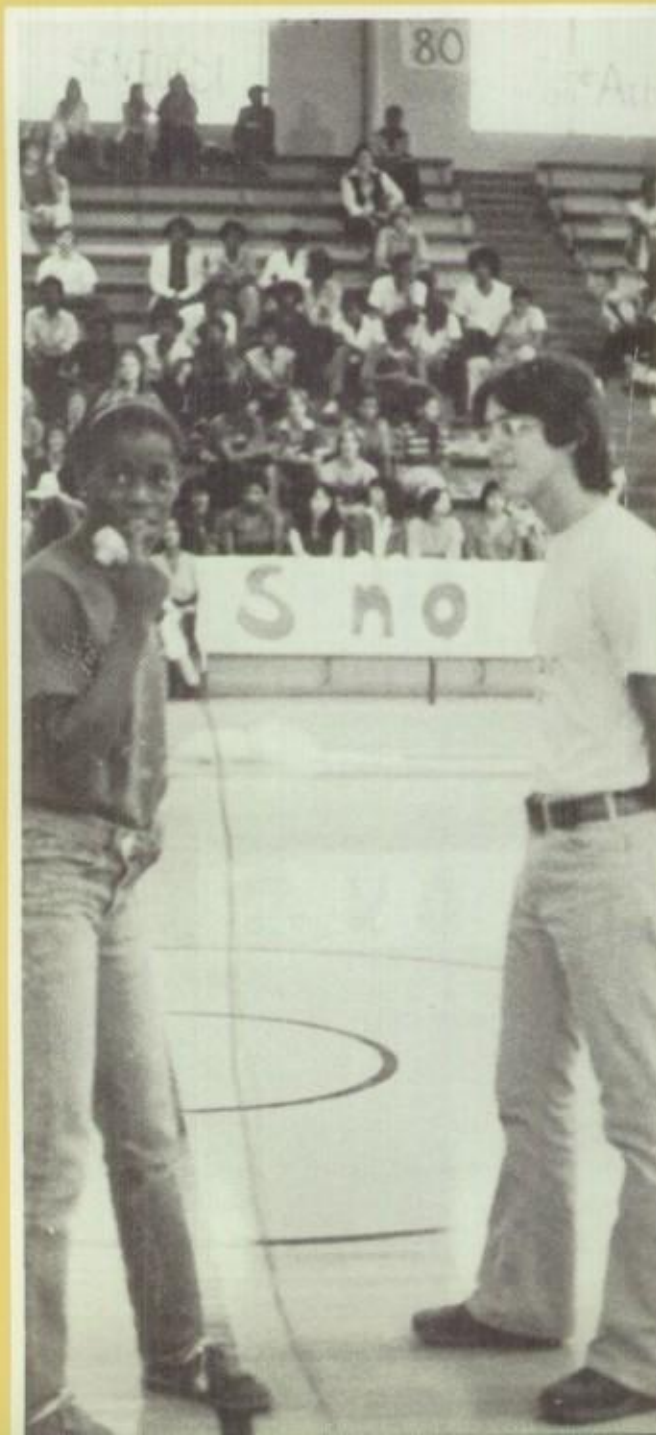

In these trying times in our country, people feel the need to be close. With Iran starting trouble, people want to keep together as one. We feel the same here. Students aren't affected as much but they express their opinions, also.

Even with the gas shortage, people are doubling up in their cars and saving fuel. Natural gas, used for heating homes through floor furnaces, is also in short supply. So, we use the next best thing, BODY HEAT!

Stay close!

Pace Setters

Probably attending classes regularly, participating in discussions, and completing assigned work accurately and promptly are the main staples of any school activities. Classen is no exception.

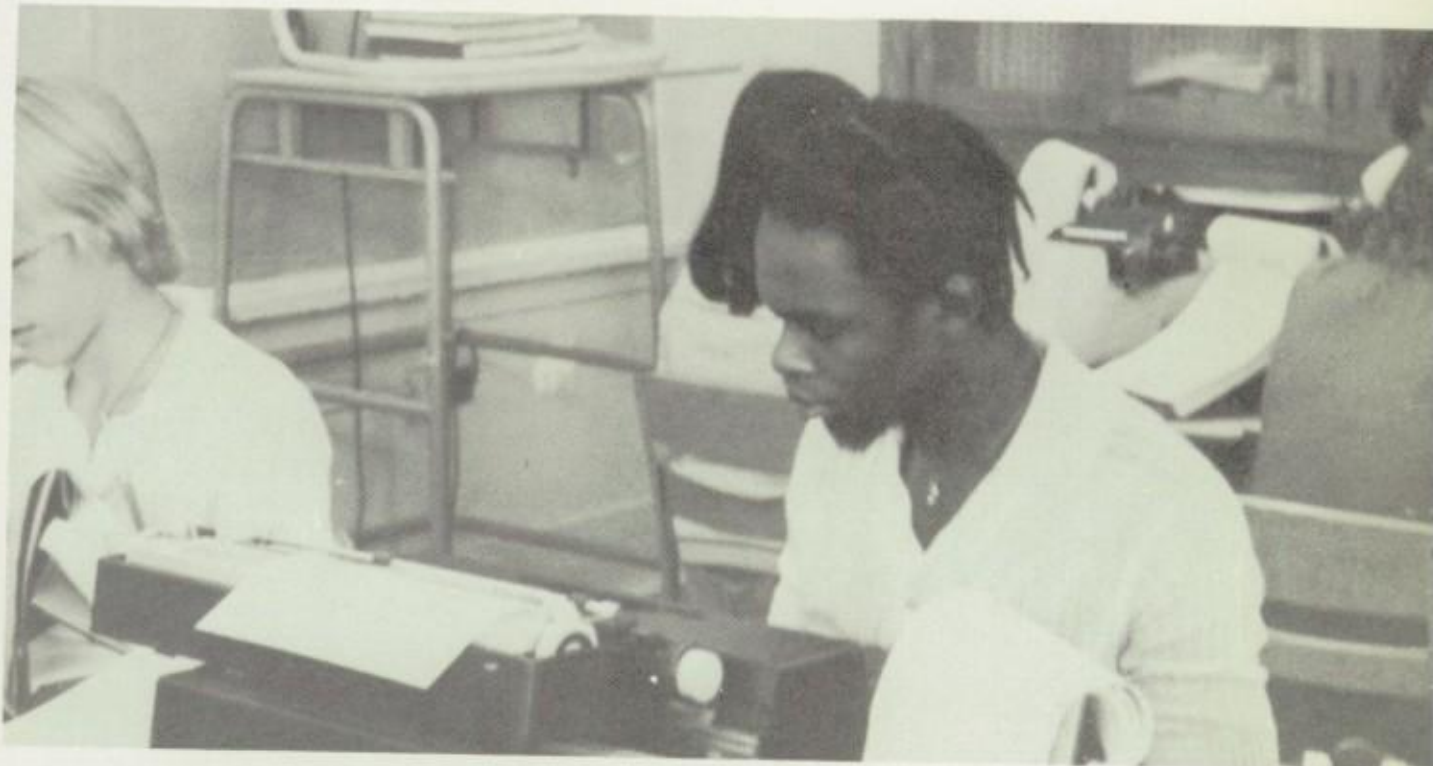

Even though much attention is given to extra-curricular and social activities, even in this book, the average daily scenes at CHS are the ones pictured here.

The typical student goes to class and generally gets there on time. So often these students might be overlooked simply because a lot of them don't excel in theatrical productions, or don't even have a bad reputation, but they are the very people who keep Classen a school. They are the majority (even though it sometimes doesn't seem that way if publications and praise over the public address system are any kind of indicators).

Funny Faces

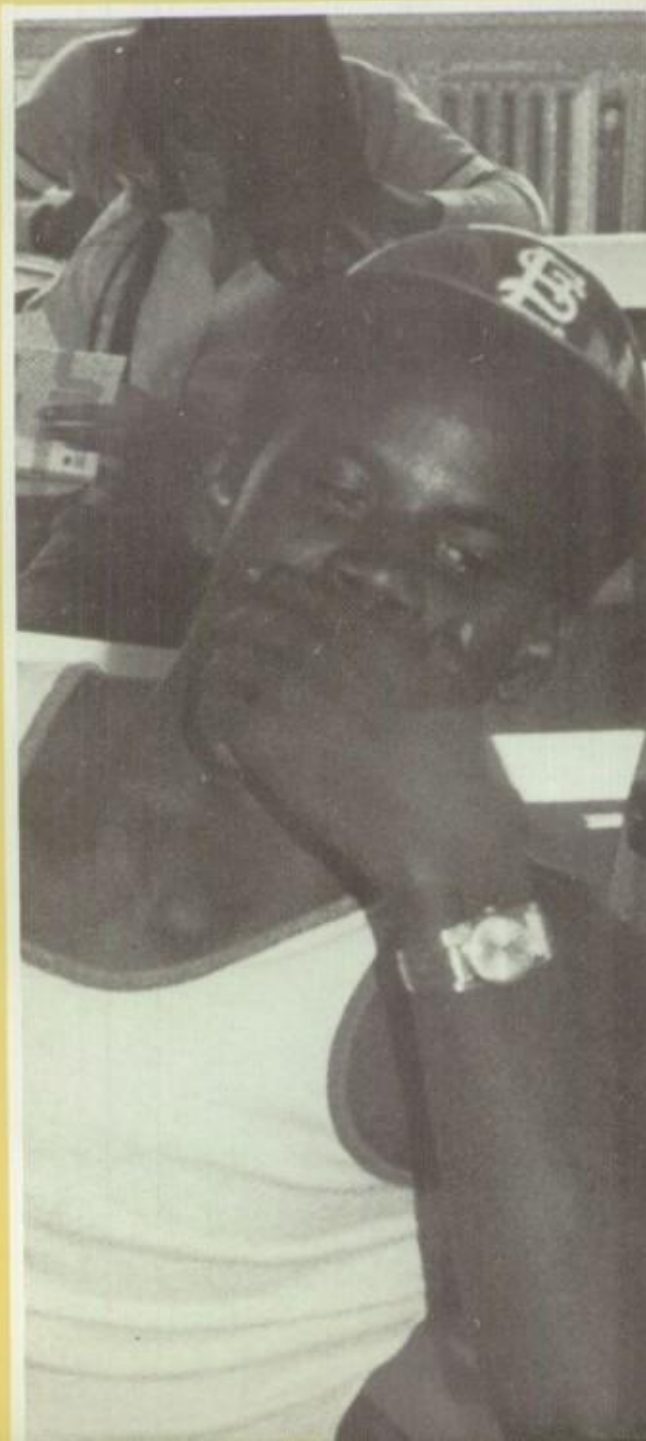

Each year there are bound to be unfamiliar faces at every school. What with incoming freshmen, transfer students, and new faculty and administrators, Classsen did indeed have some unfamiliar faces that belonged to strangers.

Some of those faces were not only unfamiliar, but funny as well. Masquerade parties at Halloween took place at at least two locations. Honor Society held a party which included clowns, rag dolls, vampires, and cats. Teachers held a masquerade party which had some staff members dressed as witches, farmers, and even Dracula!

Yet, no matter how strange and funny some faces were, some students shrugged off all the masquerades to make a comical scene out of the most mundane situations.

Cross-Country young, but strong

Despite the fact that the cross-country runners were young, they performed remarkably well in their fall meets. Another factor in the possible lowering of their morale was the fact that their regular coach was on strike during the entire season, which left them handling their own training and self-discipline.

Two upperclassmen, Paul Henrichs and Kim Russell, encouraged their younger teammates and, consequently, both boys' and girls' teams placed in most of their meets. Paul and Kim won individual first places in conference. All of the girls made marks in conference while three boys placed as well.

Both the boys and girls took second in city while Diane Bedell placed 12th in state and Kim Russell ranked 14th. Only Paul Henrichs ran in the state meet, representing Classen's male team.

Although the softball team had many new faces, mostly freshmen, the season looks even more promising for next year due to the fact that there were so many underclassmen.

There were three returning seniors this season: Robin Mitchell, Cheryl Baxter, and Theresa Mount. Returning coach for the season was Ms. Darlene Reber.

Led by Coach Jim Mauldin, the Classen soccer team had an excellent fall season. They won their league championship, the city championship, and went on to compete in the finals of the state championship where they were defeated 5-2 by the Tulsa Thunderbirds.

Football season slow

The Oklahoma City high school football season of the 1979-80 began with new head football coaches in seven of the nine city schools. This was due to the first teacher-coach strike in the city's history. The players had to cope with new personalities, coaching methods, offensive systems and nagging questions caused by the dissension among coaches, teachers, and school administrators. With all of these obstacles, one would think that players and students might give most of their time and effort to other things, but one must credit these young people with more than that for these adversities only served to unite the students even more.

Suffering through an 0 and 10 season is not easy, yet the athletes of Classen during this season showed pride, dedication, and a lot of effort in all of the games.

A sad 10 and 0 season

The Comet team fielded seven seniors to whom the burden of leadership fell. These young men and their fellow football players spent many hours on the practice field sweating, nursing blisters, bruises, and a general lack of interest from the student body to contribute to their school. Without people who are willing to give up time and effort for such feats, efforts such as these young men put forth would only be wasted. These young men suffered much harrassment from the students as well as some of the teachers for their winless season, not to mention the local publications around town. They deserve some credit for all their effort and should be noted as such.

The Classen wrestling team had a little problem getting started this year as the coach had classes he had to attend to get certified to even coach. Consequently, the wrestlers were left on their own to discipline themselves into practicing in the weight room after school.

John Sheets was probably the outstanding wrestler this year that he won the All-City tournament and placed in regionals. Darrell Ward won a gold medal at Chickasha and Rickey Medcalf and Antonio Aguilar captured fourth place medals there also. Willie Jackson placed third in that match. Robert Burow, a newcomer to Classen, won several matches this year also.

Even though the wrestlers placed in tournaments pretty well, their season was a losing one and left the wrestlers with desires to improve next year.

Basketball team takes state

The Classen basketball team finished their season with a state championship victory. Their final game in the state championship series was against Southeast, also of the Capitol Conference. The Comets finished with a record of 17-5, in which they lost three games by only one point.

Prince Bridges, the leading scorer of the team, was named as the Oklahoma State Player of the Year.

The boys defeated Millwood in their first game by a score of 76-54. Later they went on to defeat Star Spencer in an overtime with a score of 55-53. On December 14th they beat Altus with a score of 59-56.

Comets reach summit

The Douglass Trojans were beaten by the boys by a score of 52 to 50. They also defeated the Capitol Hill Redskins by a score of 48-44. They also participated in the Miami Tournament at Northeastern Oklahoma Junior College. They were beaten by a team from Missouri.

The Comets' biggest opponent, Northeast, was defeated by the Classen boys by a score of 57 to 43 in mid-February. Southeast was dunked by the Comets with a score of 38 to 36 on February 18th. Classen again played Douglass, whipping them 49 to 48. Later they played Lawton MacArthur and slammed them with a whopping score of 68 to 32.

But in March of 1980, the Comets had their greatest triumph of all when they won the 4A state championship in Oklahoma City.

The Classen boys' basketball team did much to lift the spirits of the school this year. With their much-deserved victory in the state championship, they brought back not only a trophy, but also a lot of good will and school pride that the students could take part in.

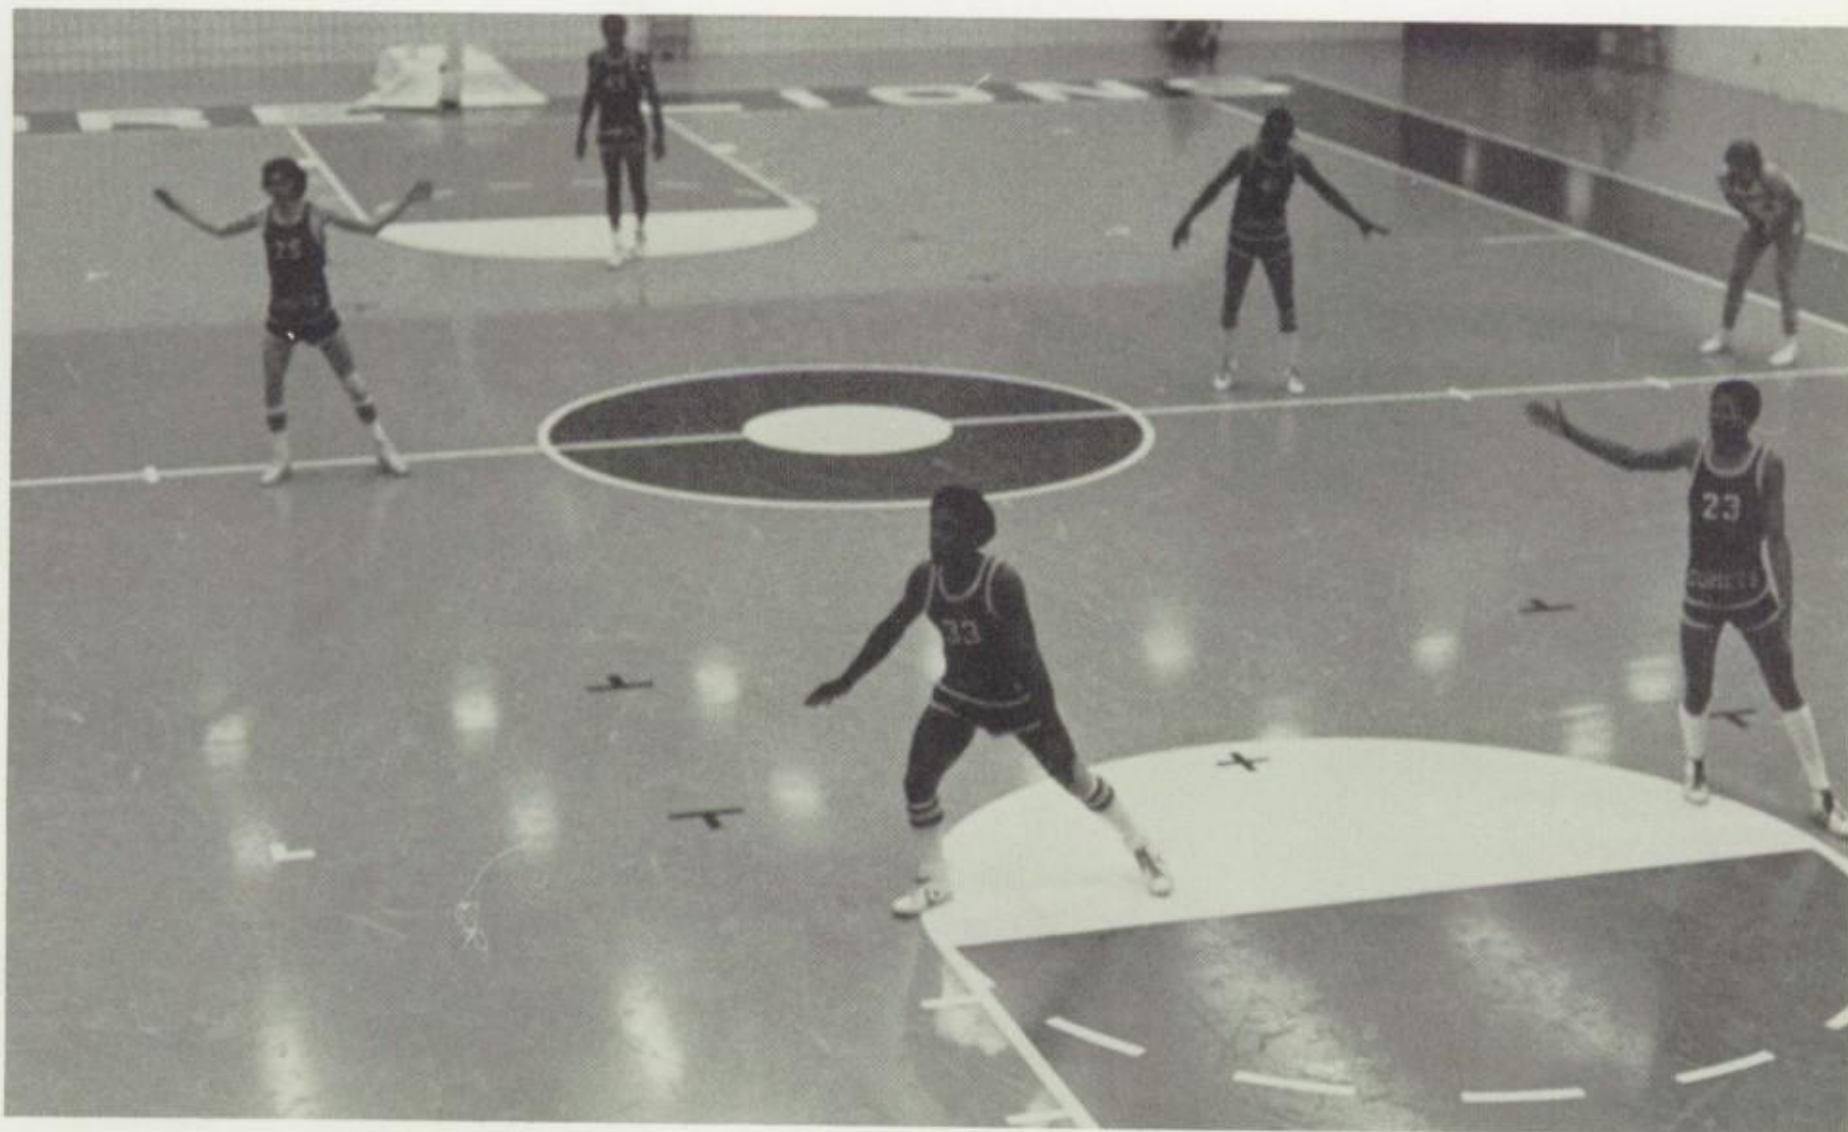

They were lauded at assemblies, banquets, and even in the newspaper. The best praise had to come from their fellow students though when they walked through the halls each day.

There has to be something said for a state championship in any sport and plenty was said about our team. They were hard working boys and we also had other hard working boys and girls at Classen who did not play basketball and that should not have been forgotten which it often times was.

The girls' basketball season started off to a fantastic beginning as the girls of Classen defeated the highly ranked Millwood, Southeast, and Star Spencer. As the season wore on; however, the enthusiasm either wore off or the girls got tired or everyone else got better. Anyway, as the season drew to a close, the scores were more depressing for the Comet girls. Under the direction of Ms. Darlene Reber for the first time, the girls did have a better season than they had had in years.

Returning seniors were Cheryl Baxter, Tammy Downey, and Cynthia Sheets. The outstanding senior girls' basketball player was Cynthia Sheets. Cheryl Baxter was honored as outstanding guard. Avis Lofton was the leading scorer and Tandra Hogan was the second highest point maker.

Girls surpass male swimmers

Despite some setbacks, the Comet swimmers did fairly well in competition this year. Because of repairs being done on the pool, swimmers weren't able to practice the week before the Capitol Conference meet which was the most vital time for practice.

Even so, seven girls went to the meet, and brought home 15 medals, coming in second (all-around). The meet was held on February 1, at Douglass High School.

In the 100 yd freestyle event, Margaret Travis, Denise Bedell, and Allison Simcox won 1st, 2nd, & 3rd place, respectively. The girls 440 relay team came in first with swimmers, Allison Simcox, Margaret Travis, Denise Bedell, and Alma Via.

The 200 Medley relay team came in third with Louie Dell, Paul Henrichs, Rod Rogers, and Peter Delaney. Paul Henrichs also came in second in the 100 yd freestyle event in conference and city.

Classen 4th in state

Classen's track team finished the track season with a mess of meets. The first meet of the final four was the all-city track meet. Here the Comets made a good showing with most of the runners getting medals.

One week later, they participated in the Capitol Conference meet held at Capitol Hill track. Classen placed fourth overall in the final standings. Don Bly placed first in the 440-yard-dash. He was the only gold medal winner.

The weekend after conference, the track team went down to Chickasha to run in the regional meet. State qualifiers were Don Bly in the 440-yard-relay, 440-yard-dash, and 220-yard-dash. Pat Jeffers won in the 100-yard-dash, 440-yard-relay. Kenneth Morris won in the 440-yard-relay and Terry Pickett won in the 440-yard-relay.

Friday and Saturday May 9th and 10th, the state 3A track meet was held at Western Heights High School. Classen had only four runners who qualified for the state meet and in only four different events.

Having only four runners and no field events, Classen was never a threat for the team championship, but Classen did place fourth and only 13 points behind Duncan, who won the championship.

Don Bly picked up three medals when he placed first in the 220, the 440, and second in the 440 relay. Don was the only double gold medal winner in the 3A championship. His time in the 440 was 49.3 and his time in the 220 was 21.5.

The members of the 440 relay who placed second were Pat Jeffires, Kenneth Morris, Terry Pickett, and Don Bly.

Baseballers have poor season

The baseball team had a three and thirteen season this year fielding only three seniors. Five juniors made the team. Four sophomores and two freshmen topped the list.

One highlight for the baseball season was Rickey Medcalf's selection to the All-City Baseball Team, second string. Rickey led the conference in batting with a .465 average. Scott Smith was second on the team with a .390 average.

Danny Griffith leads in tennis

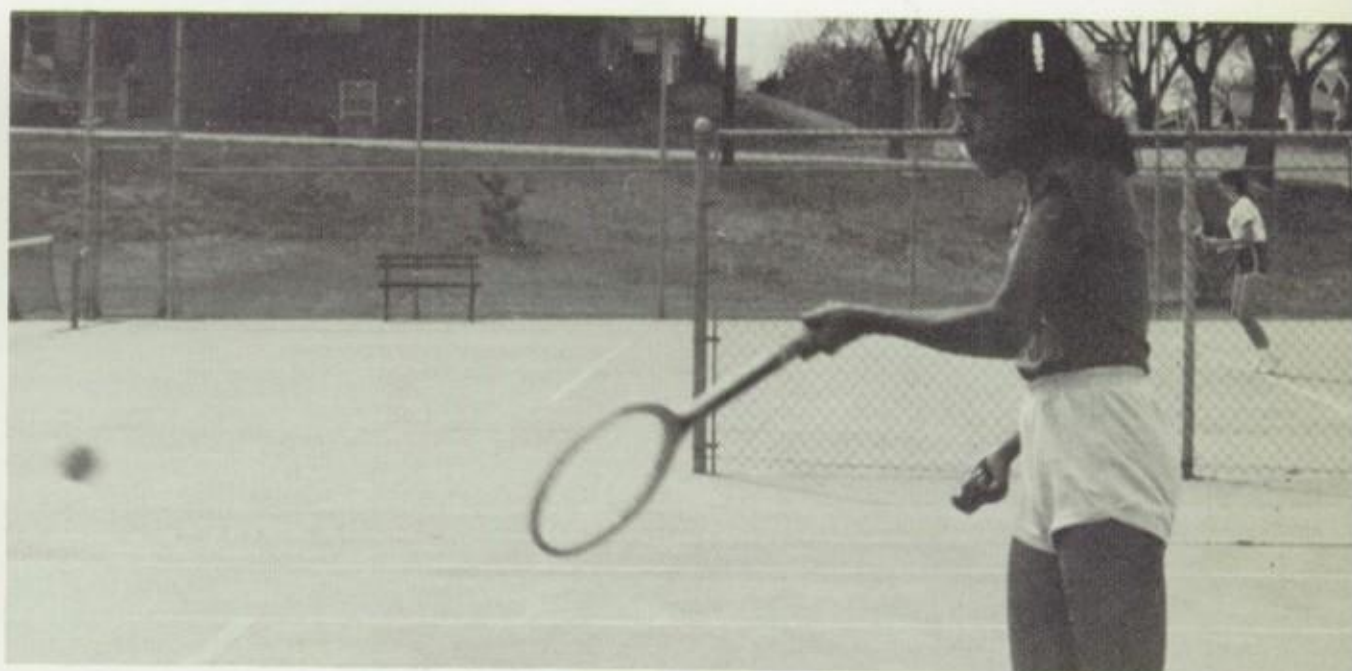

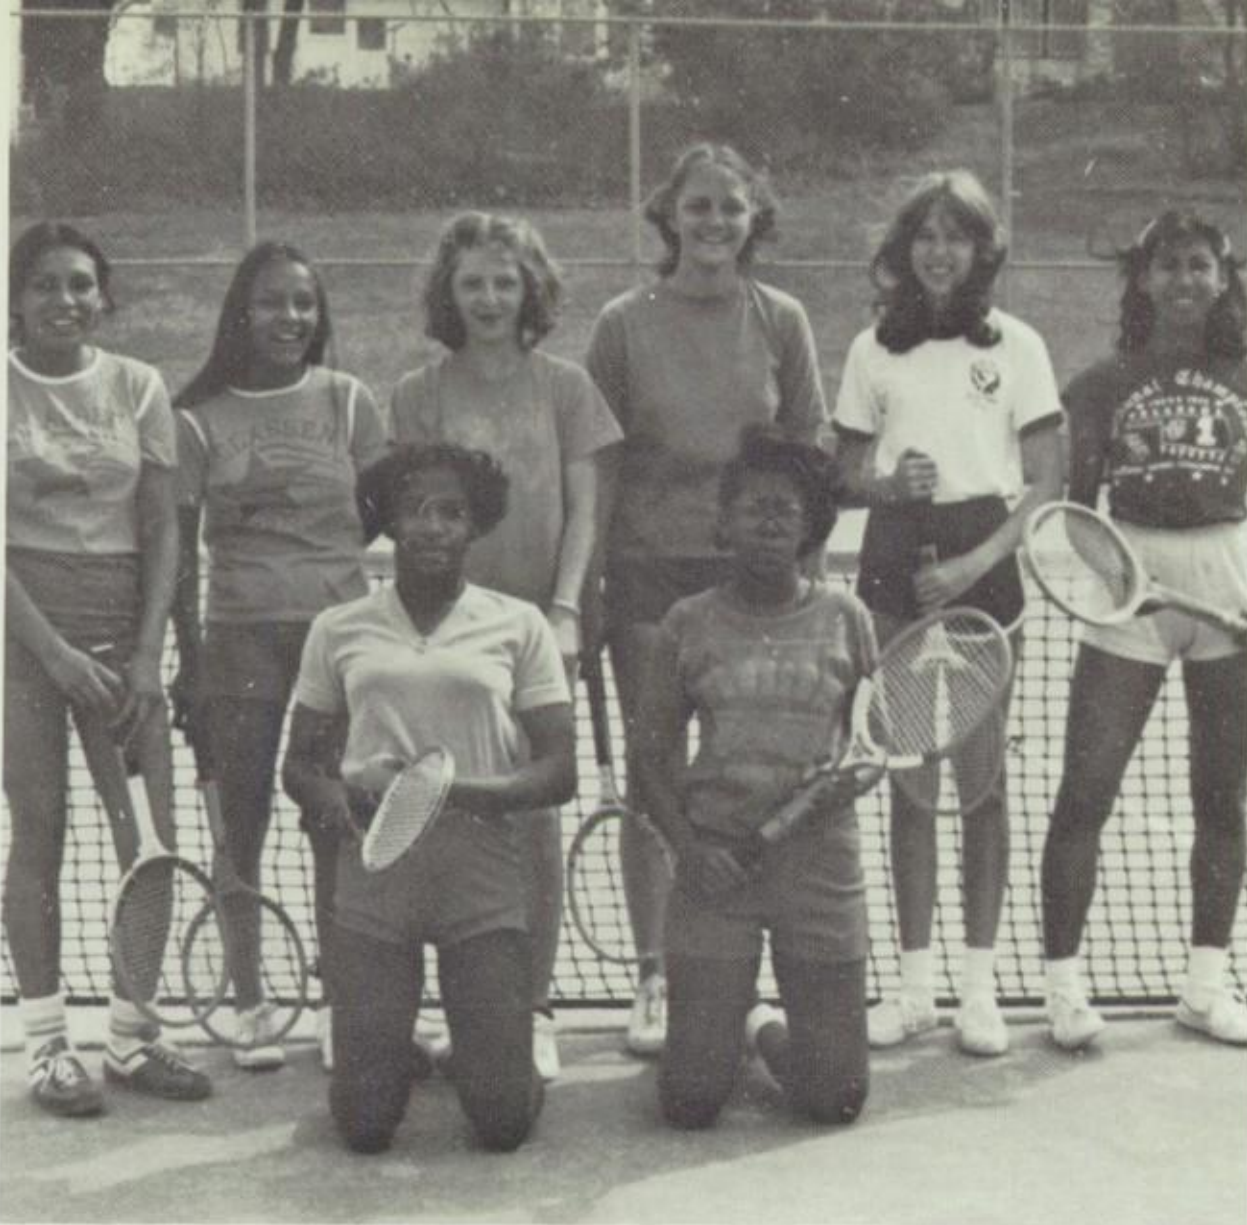

The girls' and boys' tennis teams carried losing seasons this year, but there were some highlights. Danny Griffith, a junior, was chosen as outstanding individual in the Capitol Conference tournament for his performance as the number one singles player. Danny was also ranked eighth in the number one singles at the state tournament.

The boys' team placed tenth in the state tournament, out of 32 other schools. Coach Don Fleet is optimistic that the team will improve as they will only be losing one senior.

The girls placed third over all in the Capitol Conference tournament. Individual accomplishments for the girls were third in number one singles for Sheila Gutierrez; fifth in number two singles, Paula Mitchell; third in number one doubles, Donice Griffith, Ann Wood; and second in number two doubles to Angela and Tedra Nimsey.

Mr. and Miss Classen Don Bly and Cheryl Baxter

The journalism department sponsors the Mr. and Miss Classen contest each year. Organizations throughout the school nominate one male and one female to compete for this honor. All contestants must have overall grade point averages of 3.00 and they must be seniors.

This year Don Bly was elected Mr. Classen and Cheryl Baxter was elected Miss Classen by the entire student body. They were crowned at the yearbook assembly and were presented with necklaces by the yearbook editor, Vikki Tappan.

Runners-up in the contest for Miss Classen, in order, were Gwen Pearson, Robin Mitchell, Theresa Mount, and Marcy Danford. Runners-up in the Mr. Classen contest were Scott Smith, Paul Henrichs, Carl Laughlin, and Mark Rozelle.

Seniors of 1980

Seniors rallied May 29th, 1980 at OCU Fieldhouse to tie up the twelve years of untying school had caused. Once again, they wore blue caps and gowns, even though some were in favor of the untraditional gold.

Six Flags was the site chosen for the Senior trip and a long bus ride, the yellow public school kind, carried many of the year's graduates who suffered the trip for the joys of other rides.

The 1980 seniors sold Gift Mill products their senior year, candy their junior year, and had various bake sales before them.

The theme for their senior keys, supplied by Herff Jones, was quite appropriate: The Dawning Of A New Decade.

Senior class officers were Jacky Wilhite, treasurer; Diana Winslow, secretary; and Gwen Pearson, president.

Sophomores strive

The sophomore class was the most active on fundraising activities. They showed the movie One on One, they sold M&M's, suckers, and baked goodies. They also had a booth in the anual Spring Fling.

Their sponsor was Mr. Don Fleet and their officers were Scott Payzant, president; Kevin Reeves, vice-president; Sherri Hinton, secretary; and Darrin Davis, treasurer.

The sophomore class had a blast ordering their class rings. They had a couple of false alarms when the "ring" man didn't show up the first time, but when he did, they were floating on air.

New faces and names

"Freshmen," sounds nice, doesn't it? Well, that is their new name, as they make their way and find their place here at Classen.

Even though they were off to a slow start, they progressed, just like all the freshmen classes before them. In the beginning, they didn't even have a sponsor. Ms. Simmons bravely took on the job until someone could be found.

The frosh did some small fund raising and held a bake sale in the front hall. It wasn't really their fault for their slow start. It was mostly due to organizational problems, but everybody understands that new students need a little time to adjust to new surroundings.

The freshmen class of this year were extremely fortunate not to go through any initiation week as the previous classes had. The school board felt that such unnecessary disturbances were not acceptable during regular class time.

But, as it turned out, they managed to acquire a fairly good start on that forbidden future, "Jr.-Sr. Prom!"

This is it!

The faculty was under the direction of Dr. Sally Cole who was in her second year as head principal at Classen. She was usually seen in the halls, asking students to return to class.

Mr. Jim Tomlinson was the assistant principal who was in charge of the paper work and all the mounds of red tape dictated to public schools.

Mr. Ted Lewis was the other assistant principal who was in charge of keeping the students out of the hall. Prison pre-release center fixture.

Teachers are active, too

After the strike was over, teachers got back to teaching classes and not much was mentioned by the teachers themselves. The Board got their point across by making sure that the state supreme court barred the American Federation of Teachers from representing the teachers at all. Teachers were given the democratic choice of either voting for the Association of Classroom Teachers or having no representation at all. Surprisingly, the ACT barely won over the no representation faction.

All in all, it was a defeating year for teachers as the city newspaper conglomerate as well as the school board were in cahoots together to see that teachers were whipped into line to avert any further strikes.

This year's drama department underwent several changes, making very little progress in the process. The only things that held the department together were the unity and strength found in a successful speech team.

Even though two plays were tentatively scheduled for presentation this year, they were both scrapped due to lack of enthusiasm and hard work on the part of the drama students.

The speech team, however, was a different subject altogether. Under the direction of Mr. Frank Cumby, the team could be proud of having several qualifiers in the five tournaments they entered.

Carl Willis and Stacy SeChrist qualified for duet acting; Catherine Morris for dramatic interpretation; and Kim Bridges for standard oratory. Catherine and Kim continued to the state finals. Kim Bridges also won the coveted speech award at Classen.

It started as soon as school started. Surprise! No darkroom! And there was still no darkroom until Thanksgiving! (There were many hassles over this. Remember?)

Both staffs worked hard and did earn enough money to foot the bills for both the Classen Life and Orbit. That was a statement that most journalism staffs in the city area could not say. The staffs sold valentines for the annual Cupid Express, sold t-shirts, and if these weren't enough with their publications, they sponsored the Hello, Honey Day and the annual Mr. and Miss Classen coronation.

Newspaper editor was Karen Brady and yearbook editor was Vickie Tappan. Ms. Ellen Allen was adviser for both staffs.

Classen's band and choral groups participated in several events, including the 89er's parade, Langston's homecoming, and the Christmas and spring concerts.

The band received a trophy for their performance at Langston and each band member received individual certificates for participation in the event.

The choir sang at both music concerts as well as at the Sheraton

Century downtown. The choir was larger in number than in recent years.

The gospel choir practiced during their first period class and performed at religious functions in the community.

The majorettes, drummers, color guard, and orchestra also represented Classen's music department at various functions.

Scholarship, leadership, service, and character are the National Honor Society's motto. They began the year with trips to Six Flags and Lake Texoma.

To be initiated into the Honor Society, a student must have a 3.4 grade average for two semesters, be enrolled at Classen for at least one semester, and have the approval of the faculty.

The cheerleaders were at school during the summer, after school, and during fifth hours doing the same things. They were practicing.

They not only practiced, they also performed at games and pep assemblies. Varsity cheerleaders performed at the varsity games, of course. Junior varsity cheerleaders had a rougher year, however, when they were suspended during second semester over a squabble.

This was the first year in a long time that Classsen had an organization called Fellowship of Christian Athletes, or FCA. Mr. Jim Mauldin was responsible for rekindling the group's activity.

Several speakers from the world of sports who have dedicated their lives to Christ spoke to the group through the year and the group also witnessed several films during their meetings.

The Student Council underwent many changes this year. There were three sponsors, for one thing. Ms. Maddy Rose finally got the group together and things settled down after her takeover.

The jukebox, even though its presence was short-lived, was sponsored by the group as was the bright new paint job in the cafeteria. Kenneth Langston was first semester president while Carmen Thompson manned the job second semester.

I, Jerye Cutliff, do hereby bequeath to my sister the ability to talk when spoken to, to dance and sing when asked to, and the ability to make very good grades and to be sweet and kind to everybody when she meets them. I also leave her the ability to do things by herself without having anybody else along.

I, Cheryl Baxter, do hereby bequeath to my brother, David Baxter, the ability to try and stay out of trouble and go to class most of the time.

I, Don W. Bly, do hereby bequeath to my little sister, Janice Taylor, the ability to get along with people and overlook those who are jealous.

I, Sherri Stevenson, do hereby bequeath unto my sister, Roxie Stevenson, my ability to get along with everybody and to be able to stay in class, but especially my ability not to be fast.

I, Gaynell Griffin, would like to leave Classen High School with sweet memories of the past and also to leave my little brother, Dereck Griffin, the knowledge for which he surely needs and a year's supply of his favorite cupcakes.

I, Keela Shaw, do hereby bequeath to my little brothers, Kevin and Kenneth Stoner, to get along with people who don't like me.

I, Scott Smith, do hereby bequeath to Scott Payzant the ability to laugh at the criticism from the black basketball players.

I, Vickie Tappan, do hereby bequeath to Beth Koczorowski and Carmen Thompson all the responsibility and heartache that goes with being yearbook editor. Good luck!

Medal of Honor, Anton H., and Ella D. Classen

The Classen awards were originally given to honor the memory of Anton H. Classen, the civic-minded pioneer of Oklahoma City for whom Classen High School is named. The Ella D. Classen awards have been added in memory of his wife.

The Anton H. Classen Medal of Honor, the highest of the three medals, is given to the senior boy and senior girl giving the greatest promise of worthy contribution to the progress of the world by reason of record of scholarship, strength of character, qualities of leadership and citizenship. Chris Anderson and Helen Wolford won the 1980 honors.

The Ella D. Classen awards went to Gwen Pearson and Alma Via. The Anton H. Classen Awards went to Don Bly and Scott Smith.

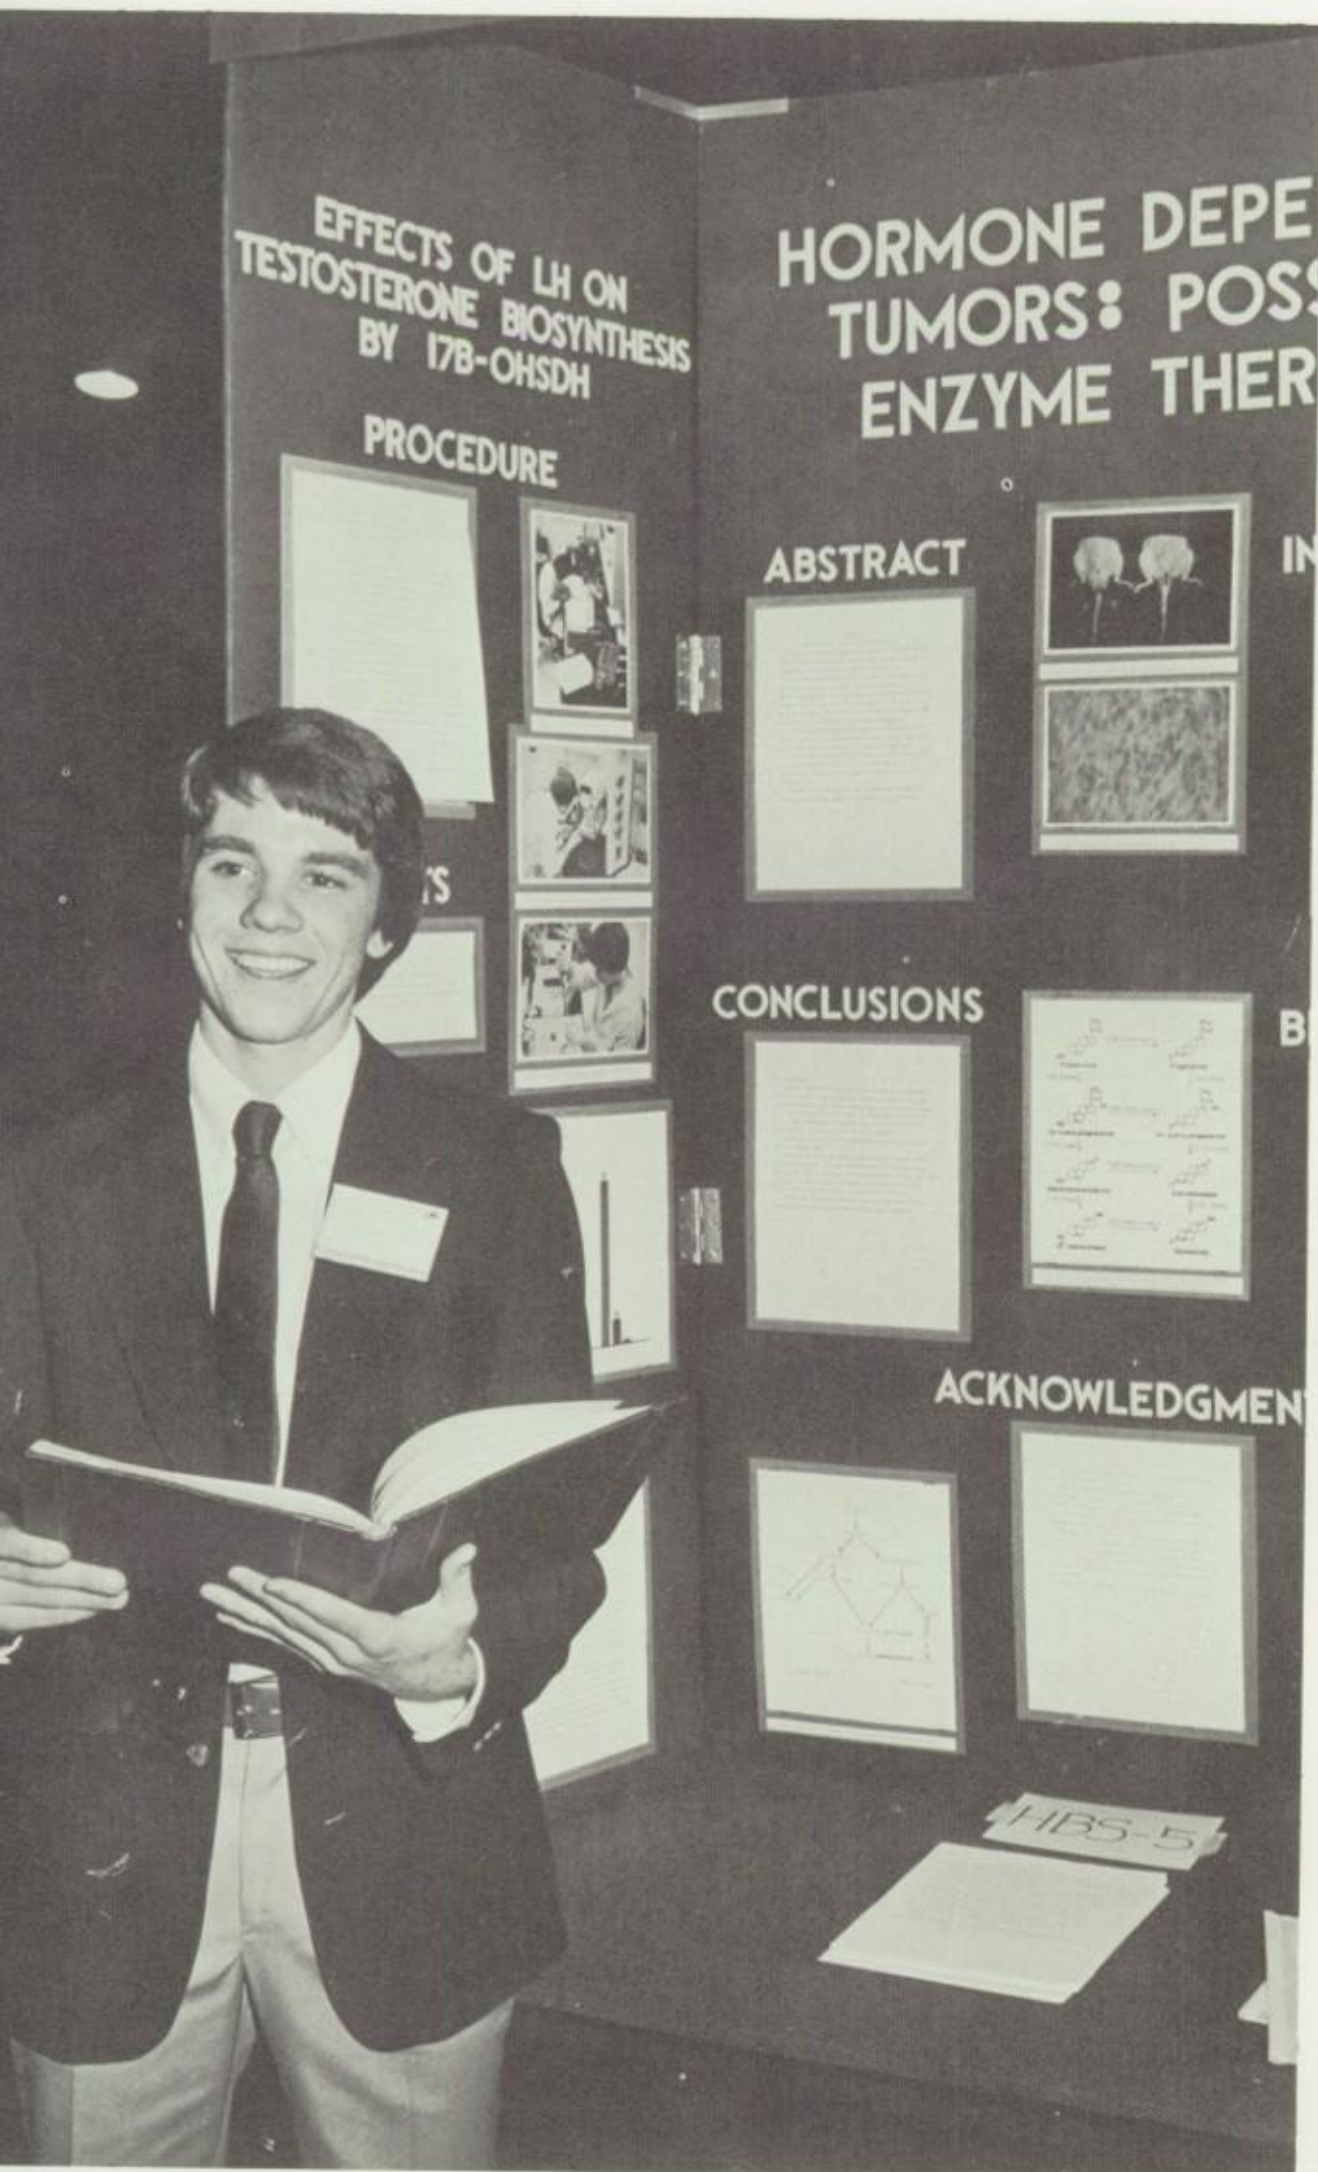

Faculty award winners were Mary Bates, Cheryl Baxter, Prince Bridges, Melody English, Paul Henrichs, Kenneth Langston, Kenneth Tice, Margaret Travis, Thang Trieu, and Sherri Wiley.

Rod Rogers ★ wins top ★★★★★ honors ★★★★★

Rod Rogers received his highest award for his project: Hormone Dependent Tumors: Possible Enzyme Therapy. Other awards he received were the U.S. Army Bronze Medallions for the most outstanding project, the Oklahoma County Medical Association, and he also won a first place award by Science and Engineering Fair Committee in biological sciences.

Rod takes advanced courses at the Northeast Science Center and this is the second year he has received recognition for outstanding achievements in the field of science. Last year he was selected to speak at West Point on an earlier project and this year he was sent to St. Paul for a similar honor.

Seniors out on top

The seniors had just a few short days in May to wrap up what twelve years of unwrapping had caused. Things were accomplished though and the seniors did graduate as seniors graduate each year.

Baccalaureate, or Senior Sermon, as some called it, was held at First Baptist Church downtown and must have held the record for the shortest service in history, an entire 23 minutes in all.

Graduation services were held at OCU's Fieldhouse for the second year in a row. May 29th was the date chosen for the graduates to cross the stage in their blue gowns. It was the final gathering for the seniors of 1980.

The 1980 junior-senior prom was held May 9th at the Central State University Student Center Ballroom. The band was "Maya" and the theme was from the current movie "The Main Event."

New faces as well as old were seen dancing and "drinking" till the magic hour of 12. Couples dined at expensive and exotic restaurants, such as Applewood's, Red Lobster, Steak and Ale, and The Haunted House.

Art classes and Mr. Chuck Keeler made the table decorations and the students ripped off all the leftovers.

Right: Energy is the theme for this year's yearbook and watching the sunset is like watching the source of our energy disappear. Below: Two students spend a casual class period in the window instead of in class.

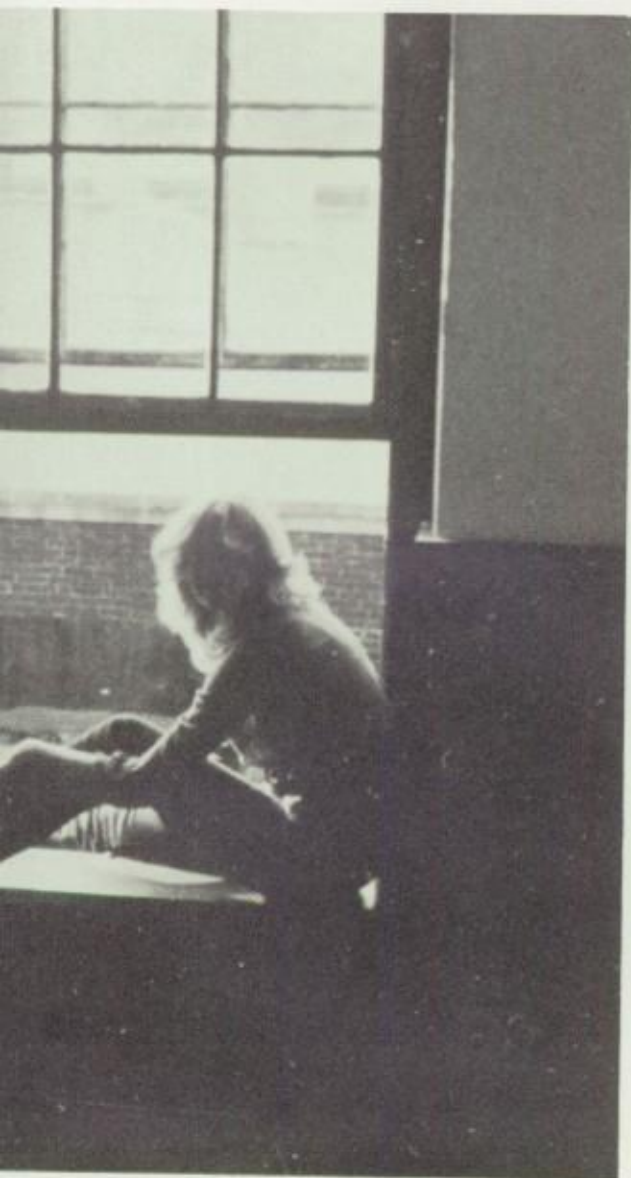

Energy wanes

The theme of the yearbook was, as was said in the opening section, Energy. Now that the school year is over, we see gasoline at $1.25 a gallon for unleaded. Luckily, this winter was a light one and the price of home heating fuel was not a major factor.

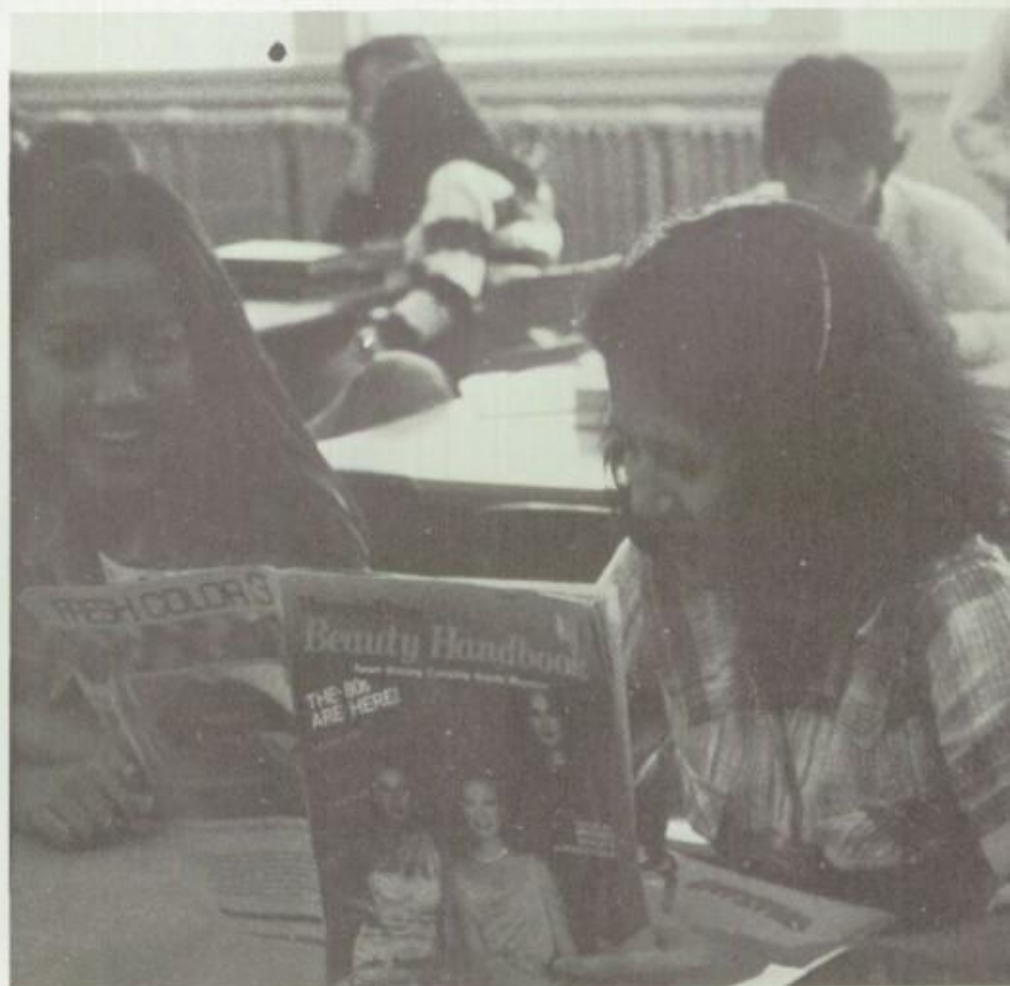

Energy was sparse in some places, but seemed to be "busting out all over" in others as was seen by the Mt. St. Helen's volcano in Washington state. Hot mud and torrential ash deposits covered much of North America as the volcano showed its own form of power- a zenith in natural energy!
